ENGLISH TAXES
TARIFF LAWS
GOLD MINES FAIL

—By Arthur Brisbane—
(Copyright 1930 By King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

GONE ARE THE DAYS of happy and practically tax free great estate owners in England.

The Duke of Montrose wanted to sell 25,000 of his acres, including part of "the bonnie, bonnie banks of Loch Lomond," and some beautiful islands in the lake.

Not one bid was offered. The provident Duke, sixth to bear the title, wanted to raise money, in advance, to pay his own death duties. MacDonald's Social-Labor Government had refused to take land instead of cash later, missing a chance to experiment in land socialism and single tax.

M. POINCARÉ, FORMERLY President and Premier of France, described our new tariff as "selfish."

If true, that is really TOO bad. Everything that European nations have done, from their war of 1914 to their refusal to pay us what they owe in full, is so entirely UNSELFISH that we really ought to be ashamed of ourselves.

How shameful to enact a tariff to protect our labor and industry, when we might be throwing our markets open to cheap labor abroad.

Professor Einstein is working on another theory, which according to an interview enters a field "more vast" than any field explored by him hitherto.

As he has already explored the universe, the new field must be very big.

One Einstein theory that anybody can understand and approve is this. He says "the most important work that the world has on hand is to improve the education of the young."

MISSIONARIES ARE fleeing from the interior of China, and the new Chinese authorities, blind and dead to their own chance for salvation, forbid any more teaching of Christianity in China's schools.

If the discouragement of China's missionaries to be permanent, many could find fields of spiritual labor here in the United States. The old hymn says "way out upon the prairie, how many children dwell that never read the Bible, or heard of the Sabbath bell." That's true of big cities.

THIS COUNTRY IS RICH, but even a gold mine can be exhausted. You realize partly what is wrong with us when you hear that the shipping board has cost the country thus far $3,683,569,000. That's a good deal.

Add to that various other costs including that of bootlegging, racketeering, etc., amounting to several billions a year, equaling the entire cost of the national government and you realize that even the United States may spend too much.

Business Good For Columbiana Concern

INTEREST GROWS IN AUGUST PRIMARIES

Board To Discuss New School Building Monday

VOTERS MAY BE ASKED TO PASS LEVY THIS FALL

Superintendent Explains Congestion Existing At Present Time

FINAL ACTION IS NOT ANTICIPATED

Coal Bids Will Also Be Opened In Meeting; Monday Night

Possibilities of securing approval of Salem voters to a levy to provide funds for the construction of a new junior high school building here in 1931 will be aired at a meeting of the board of education at the high school Monday night.

The board will consider plans for placing the construction of the new school building up to voters at the November election following recommendations made by John S. Alan, superintendent of public schools, that a new building will be necessary to provide relief for congested conditions anticipated in classrooms within the next two years.

Have discussed matter Preliminary discussions on the matter were held by the board at its meeting in July and at a later session held in the middle of the month. Final action is not anticipated at Monday's session, the board not being forced to decide definitely as to whether or not the levy will be placed before the voters until 60 days previous the date of election.

Architects have been asked to present plans and specifications for the proposed building but these probably will not be received until the September meeting. The board, in session discussions, has suggested at 32-room building of three stories with a large, modern auditorium, bathing pool, gymnasium and cafeteria.

It has as yet not been ascertained the cost of the structure. This aspect will not be discussed until suggestions are received from architects and various buildings designs are studied by the board.

The board will also open bids and award contract to furnish the public schools with coal during the 1930-31 school term. Bids have been received from several Salem dealers by Clerk Albert Hayes.

Appointment of additional members of grade, junior high and high school teaching staffs in order to fill vacancies created by resignation this summer will also be undertaken by the members.

LISBON PLANS BATHING POOL

Donations Of Group And City Fund Will Create Swimming Tank; Natural Ones Absent

LISBON, Aug. 2.—George Rogers, president of the Columbiana County Agricultural society is back of a movement to construct a large public swimming pool within the county fair grounds early next spring. The proposition being advanced by Rogers will result in a group of men contributing an amount, yet to be determined, and that this money be matched by the village of Lisbon as a municipal corporation.

After the pool is constructed, it would then be turned over to the village as a municipal project, and free to the people.

The nearest swimming pool to Lisbon is 10 miles distant, although Beaver creek has a number of "swimming holes" that have been used during the summer.

It is also proposed to erect a modern bath house and the pool is to be constructed in such a manner that small children can enter the water with safety.

Davlight Robbery Staged At Capital

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—For the second time in two days thieves staged a daylight robbery in the business section of the capital when David Hyatt, bank messenger, was kidnapped and robbed of $4,000 in cash.

He was thrown into an automobile and taken to an isolated section of a park. The robbers escaped into Maryland.

A bandit attacked Miss Eleanor Page, cashier of the Children's hospital, and escaped with $7,000 in cash and checks the day before. No arrests have been made.

MEADOW LARK GOLF COURSE ON BUCKEYE AVE. WILL BE OPEN ALL DAY SUNDAY.

Extension Measure Not Recorded

LISBON, Aug. 2.—An ordinance recently passed by the council of the city of Salem annexing 5.23 additional square miles to the corporation has been filed for record with County Recorder Paul H. Smith, but the record has not been made for the reason the filing fee did not accompany the record.

Recording of the ordinance will cost the Salem $9.75 and the recording of the plat $7.50. Transferring of the property on the county tax map will cost $1.50.

MINATURE GOLF COURSE WILL BE OPEN ON SUNDAY

Blue Law Arrests May Follow Action Here; Opinions Differ

What may develop into a war with a miniature golf course owner on one side and city officials on the other is being fought today with the statement of the golf course owner that the course will remain open on Sunday.

The course is located in part of Perry township north of the city which was recently annexed by Salem.

Mayer John M. Davidson has issued an edict that the courses must remain closed on Sunday, but the owner of the course, after a consultation with Prosecuting Attorney John Baucknecht and his own attorneys, has decided to remain open and test the case, inasmuch as doubt exists in his mind as to whether the extension is in effect or not.

Salem city limits have been legally extended, despite the fact the recording of the action is held up in the county recorder's office until payment for recording is made by Salem. City Solicitor Cecil K. Scott stated this morning.

"If the golf course is open, arrests will be made," Scott added.

NEW FIRE ALARM RECORD CREATED

Salem Firemen Responded To 27 Alarms Last Month, Report

Salem firemen created a new all-time record for total alarms answered in a single month, making 27 during August. Fire Chief Vincent L. Malloy announced in his monthly report today.

Fire-fighters experienced an unusually busy month because of many grass fires occurring in the city, more than one-half alarms resulting from blazes in vacant fields and in dried-up swamps.

The month's total of alarms is 21 more than were answered in August, 1929, while the total runs for this year—surpasses the seven months' total of last year by 26.

At the close of July, 1929, firemen had answered 60 alarms while runs-to-date are already listed at 86, only 15 less than were answered all last year and 19 less than the number recorded for 1928.

Preliminary plans for the affair were made at a meeting last Wednesday when it was decided that final plans should be completed at the meeting Monday. The following committee chairmen were appointed:

Manager of fair, Russell M. Beck; concession manager, Homer C. Culp; premium chairman, Thomas H. Snyder; advertising, Ray Fisher; special prizes, Raymond J. Glickler; street, Howard M. Hoover and traffic, Thomas Harrold.

DRIEST JULY ON RECORD OCCURRED IN LAST MONTH

Weather Reports Showing Rainfall Far Below Average Complete

MANY CROPS MAY FAIL COMPLETELY

Livestock On Feed When Pastures In County Are Drying Up

LISBON, Aug. 2.—The month of July has gone down in history as Columbiana county's driest July on record, it has been disclosed by Lawrence H. Copeland of Millport, cooperative weather observer for this district for the United States department of agriculture.

The heat also reached a new high record with but one exception, the latter being Aug. 6-7, 1918, when 103 degrees were registered. The highest temperature at Millport during last month was 100 degrees. Although two light frosts were recorded, on July 4 and 15, the temperature went above 90 degrees in ten days.

Crops Are Failure At the close of July, corn and potatoes gave every promise of being a failure, so far as Columbiana county is concerned.

All creeks are all but dried. Farmers are hauling water for their stock, and because of poor pasture, livestock is mostly on full feed.

The total rainfall for June and July was 6.38 inches as against a normal record of 11.85 inches for these two months.

There were 11 days during July 1929 when rain fell, with corn, potatoes and pastures in the best of condition, and with no cats in shock. The reverse situation is reported for the current season, with the harvest about completed.

Mean maximum temperature for July was 80.1 degrees with the mean minimum at 55.2 and the mean temperature at 70.6. The maximum temperature of 100 degrees was recorded July 21 and the coolest July day was on the 15th when 37 degrees were recorded. Total precipitation for July was 1.46 inches with 60 inches being the heaviest fall on July 22. There were 18 clear and 13 partly cloudy days last month.

BUSINESS MEN MEET TO SURVEY DANGERS THAT FACE FARMERS OF OHIO

Need Of Rain And Bank Credit High Points In Discussion At Columbus; Farmers Tell Meeting Of Present Plight

BY MURRAY POWERS Staff Correspondent For The News COLUMBUS, Aug. 2.—Fully cognizant of the agricultural situation in Ohio due to the drought and realizing that unless farmers are given more than just a "pat on the back" their plight may become worse, leaders in business, banking and agriculture were seeking today methods by which they might give relief.

These leaders yesterday heard the agricultural situation described by men who make their living from the soil. The Ohio Chamber of Commerce called them together and today officials of this group made plans to appoint committee looking to the extension of banking credit to farmers and to further investigating Ohio conditions.

The entire afternoon's discussion was devoted to the problem of the farmer, no matter how they were to be arrived at. One was the need of a large share of the good Lord's rainfall—the other an extension of banking credit, long time loans at low interest rates.

Louis J. Taber, master of the national grange in the final talk of the conference summarized what many of the leaders agreed was needed.

The morale of the farmer must be built up, he said. The farmer who has been through financial and crop difficulties must not be allowed to quit. He added that a committee should be set up in every county that would function to give every possible relief to the farmer, including bank credit.

He suggested the engineering problem—the need to search for water. His final recommendation was that feed and roughage must be provided and means of transportation afforded.

Will Guide Policy

THE Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader, is assured of the position of Canada's next prime minister as a result of the sweeping majority obtained by his party in the early stages of the vote counting. The new premier will enjoy a generous majority over all other groups in the Canadian parliament.

HOOVER ACTS ON HOME OWNERSHIP

Calls Conference To Aid Financing Of Private House Projects

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Coordinated effort to remove influences which are depriving thousands of Americans of the advantages of home ownership was set in action today at the direction of President Hoover.

Privately financed, and with its studies directed at coordinating and stimulating private effort rather than seeking relief through legislation, a national conference on home ownership and building has been called by the President.

A score of associations representing the majority of the interests touching on the problem were invited to detail their chiefs as members of a planning committee which will make up the conferences program.

Mr. Hoover pointed out that financing conditions surrounding home building have been extremely bad and are particularly in need of adjustment but this, he said, would be only one phase of the conference's work.

G. E. Graf Appointed To Banking Position

ALLIANCE, Aug. 2.—Anticipating reopening here of the Peoples bank in September, directors today named G. E. Graf executive vice president and cashier. Graf is assistant cashier and trust officer of the First National bank.

The Peoples bank was closed in April when a $131,000 shortage was discovered in the accounts of A. D. Thompson, vice president, and W. A. Thompson, cashier. The Thompsons are serving terms in Ohio penitentiary for the offense.

LAKEHURST MAY RECEIVE LARGE BRITISH AIRSHIP

Repairs To Air Monster May Necessitate U. S. Voyage

HANGAR OFFERED TO COMMANDER

Plans For All-English Jaunt Would Fail If Accepted

(By The Associated Press) ST. HUBERT, QUE., Aug. 2.—The winged lion of the air needed treatment today but the home folk were trying to avoid sending him away to a foreign hospital.

Officers of the British dirigible R-100 were confronted with the task of repairing damage suffered by the airship in the last hours of its flight from Cardington, England, to Canada. A large strip of fabric was ripped from the port fin by the wind and the R-100 finished the voyage with temporary repairs.

Two courses were open, one was to attempt to replace the torn fabric with the ship moored to the tower where it made last yesterday morning. The other was to take the airship to the United States naval station at Lakehurst, N. J., where it could be housed in a hangar.

The job of spreading and fastening new fabric with the airship swinging in the wind at the top of the tower where neither ladders nor scaffolding can be used is both dangerous and difficult. Much of it would have to be done from within the fin.

Only Hangar Large Enough The facilities at Lakehurst, which has the only hangar on the continent large enough to house the R-100, have been tendered to her officers by Charles Francis Adams, secretary of the navy, through the British embassy at Washington.

Whether the British airmen would avail themselves of the offer was uncertain today. The flight from the mother country to one of her dominions was projected as an all-British enterprise. Those in charge have indicated that they would feel that the all-British character of the undertaking would be dimmed if the R-100 crossed the border and came to rest on American soil even for repairs.

A strip 15 by six feet was ripped off the port fin on the afternoon of the third day of the flight as the R-100 flew up the St. Lawrence valley. A crew of 16 riggers worked two hours in great peril to effect temporary repairs. A few hours later the airship encountered violent air currents during a thunderstorm which caused her to shoot up nose foremost 2,500 feet in less than a minute.

A substitute crew which had been sent from England in advance was in charge of re-fueling operations today while the men who brought the airship across the Atlantic were on shore leave.

Possession Charge Brings $100 Fine

LISBON, Aug. 1.—On his plea of guilty, Frank Carson, residing in St. Clair township near Ainsley road, was fined $100 and costs by Justice of the Peace M. K. Zimmerman late Friday afternoon on a charge of possessing liquor filed by Sheriff W. J. Barlow.

Barlow and Deputy Sheriffs George Harroff and William Vanden entered the Carson home with a search warrant, and when Carson saw the officers he threw a gallon glass jug down the cellar steps, breaking it. Carson then threw paper over the liquor, and this soaked paper and the broken glass was gathered and taken into court. Carson admitted his guilt.

Two Men Slain In Roadhouse Affair

KENOSHA, WIS., Aug. 2.—Louis Derler, 45, owner of a roadhouse, and his bartender were slain Friday by two men who drove an automobile bearing an Illinois license. The shooting came as the climax of an argument, between Derler and one of the slayers, Charles Buxder, owner of a neighboring roadhouse joined in the struggle and was slugged over the head with a revolver butt.

Two women accompanied the slayers, who escaped.

Estate Sought

CINCINNATI, Aug. 2.—Judge of Probate Court William H. Leuders has received a letter from S. C. Staefel, attorney, Los Angeles, requesting a copy of the will of James Eds. How, "millionaire hobo" who left his divorced widow "only what she is entitled to legally" and arranged for the remainder of the bequests for philanthropic purposes. Staefel stated he represented the widow. The estate was estimated at $500,000.

Township Residents Vote At Same Polls

Residents of Perry township living in territory annexed to the city of Salem will cast votes at township polling places at the primary election, Tuesday, Aug. 12. J. S. Hilbert of the Columbiana county board of elections announced in East Liverpool this morning.

Hilbert stated that inasmuch as the primaries involve no municipal offices and only state and county offices are at stake the township residents in the new city limit areas will continue to vote as they have at past elections.

CROP PROBLEMS FORM TOPIC AT FARM MEETING

Federal Board Chairman Presents Appeal For Wheat Adjustments

(By The Associated Press) INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 2.—Alexander Legge chairman of the federal farm board made his appeal here in the heart of the soft red wheat belt, for an adjustment of acreage to help to improve the general wheat price situation, Friday.

Agricultural extension directors, experimental station heads and economists from Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, Missouri and Kentucky attended the meeting which was executive.

The meeting was one of a series of wheat problem conferences being fostered by the federal farm board. The message brought by Chairman Legge and others was practically the same as that carried recently to the hard wheat states.

Participants in the meeting were urged to tell the farmers at subsequent meetings in their respective states of the danger of lowered prices unless curtailment of acreage and reduction of bushel costs can be effected. No set program was outlined. George S. Farrell, Washington, department of agriculture, regent for the central states who presided, said each state should work out its own program.

Chairman Legge's remarks supplemented those by agronomists from Washington, who outlined the world wheat outlook and the farm board doctrine for general curtailment of wheat production until higher world prices have been established. Although the crop of the soft, red wheat region is entirely consumed in the United States, the experts held that curtailment would bring beneficial results generally.

SEARCH FOR MAN IN LINGLE DEATH

Politician Connected In Recall Campaign Is Wanted By Police

DETROIT, Aug. 2.—Egbert M. Hofmann, political worker for Mayor Charles Bowles in the recent recall campaign, is being sought today by police for questioning in connection with the slaying of Perry Buckley, described Hofmann as "a young man of means, interested in aiding police in rounding up violators of the narcotics drug laws."

Police found a bank book issued to Hofmann in an apartment occupied by Marjorie Mansell, "Blues" singer for station WMBC, and Pete Licaoli, notorious gangster who has eluded police since Buckley's slaying. Detectives said Miss Mansell admitted she was Licaoli's sweetheart, but that they obtained no further information from her after a day of questioning. She was arrested Thursday night.

Hofmann's bankbook showed average daily deposits of more than $2,000 for the past few weeks. Mayor Bowles said Hofmann is rent collector for the Sherer estate and his bank book should show large deposits.

Ohio Attorney Can Not Practice Law

HILLSBORO, Aug. 2.—J. Arthur Horn, city solicitor of Greenfield, was suspended from practice today by Judge Frank Clevenger of Wilmington on the ground that his conduct involved moral turpitude.

Horn was charged with having paid money to three persons in an effort to obtain affidavits against another attorney, Daniel Smith, who was leading a fight against the Greenfield city school board.

THE SUN

Photographers aviators, refreshment dealers and bathhouse operators are about the only ones who can comment on the "fine weather we're having." And even they would welcome a good rain.

The farmer, to whom weather is a factor in production, is watching his corn standing stiffly in parched ground. He has tried to reap, and bind piggy old stalks without great success. His potatoes and beans have stopped growing, and he is wondering where he will find water and food for his cattle and sheep. Farm relief doesn't mean much to him right now but two or three days of good rainfall would be a real god send. Rain, unfortunately, is not the product of governmental activity.

It was a different story in July, 1929. Then the farmer watched his chevies of wheat floating about in water, saw his corn lying flat after high winds and torrential downpours and herded his stock into one corner of the pasture to keep it from drowning. Whereas the total rainfall in Canton for the entire month of July this year is but 1.29 inches, 2.46 inches fell during one day last year, July 19. On another day, July 9, 1.65 inches of water fell in 12 minutes. The total precipitation up to the 25th day of July, 1929, was 8.7 inches and it had increased to 9.92 inches by the end of the month. Incidentally a precipitation record which had stood since 1886 was broken by the rainfall up to July 25 last year—a dry record which has stood since 1882 was broken in July of the present year.

Drouth doesn't occur often, fortunately, but its infrequency in slight comfort. No one can predict the true extent of the damage done this month nor the effect it will have upon food prices next winter, but that there will be effects goes without saying. The most consideration at the moment goes to the farmer standing on his doorstep every morning to watch another glorious sunrise. Unofficial weather prophets warn that he will be watching glorious sunrises for an other month and that is real tragedy—nothing to do but wait and take the consequences.

DOUBTS

The arrival of Zoro Agha, seasoned Turkish tea-totaller and sequenatarian, in this country has turned the thoughts of many to the lurking ferbleness that will make its pounce sooner or later. Mr. Agha and others who claim sensational longevity are faintly glimmering examples of what may be done to delay the dread day of decline by the simple life—or so their feat of protraction is interpreted.

Some few days ago this newspaper presented the names of several prominent centenarians of the day and one other who claims to have lasted it out for 252 years. At the same time doubt was expressed concerning the possibility of overestimation. The fuse which has been made over Mr. Agha prompts further voicing of doubts.

There is the statement, for instance, made by Arthur Hunter, chief actuary of a large insurance company, to the effect that there is no authenticated case of a human being who has lived to be more than 100 years of age. Mr. Hunter says that most cases of extreme age blow up when investigated and dwindle down to the nineties, or thereabouts. He points out that they are most frequent in countries where records are incomplete or have never been made. It is not proof so much as disproof that is difficult to find.

Mr. Hunter has hit the old age claims on a rheumatic joint, so to speak. He has put them in the place to which suspicion directs them naturally—in the same pigeonhole with the lady in Color Corners.

Arizona, who was cured of cancer by one bottle of Snake Eye Electric Lotion, and so forth. The lady's story may, like Mr. Agha's age, all be true but who is going to take the trouble to find out?

The effect of all this is simple enough. Mr. Agha and his companions in old age have their stories and they stick to them. The rest of us have doubts and we'll stick to them. If something should pry us loose we can make this inquiry:
Who wants to live more than a hundred years anyway?

Senator Borah plans to spend his vacation in Maine. With President Hoover a couple of thousand miles away, the senator should enjoy a good rest—not to speak of Mr.
Hoover.

Another Americanism—Paying little or no attention to the murder of a poor person but calling out
the state militia when a politician or millionaire is shot.

What Others Say

CONTRAST OF HOMECOMINGS

With no desire whatever to dis-parage the brilliancy of Admiral Byrd's achievement or to question his right to the great popular acclaim on the occasion of his homecoming, one can not help but contrast the manner and size of his welcome with that extended three days before to R. Parker Gilbert. Not that Mr. Gilbert would have expected or enjoyed the demonstration that was Admiral Byrd's
lot. It was characteristic of him that in coming up the bay he should talk in generalities to the reporters who besieged him, and then cut the interview short to join
his wife in looking at the sunset, also that he should land like any other traveler returning from European visit and immediately vanish from public view.

Yet when one weighs his accomplishment during his five years and a half as agent general for reparations payments one finds it difficult to exaggerate its importance or to point to any other member of his generation who more richly deserves the admiration of his countrymen. His task has been described as that of "the greatest reconciliation in the history of the world," but even this does not hint of its delicacy. That he should perform it to the queen's taste, without bluster or compromise, retaining to the end the confidence and good will of debtor and creditors alike, is a tribute to American genius second to none in our time.

Mr. Gilbert is ten years older than Col. Lindbergh, but it comes natural to link the two in the matter both of achievement and of character. Mr. Gilbert, like the colonel, is a tall man, a shy man, an expert in his line, whose superior self-confidence is matched by an equally extraordinary mental balance. As the unofficial representative of his country in a foreign land he has left the same indubitable impression of modest competence that Lindbergh conveyed,
and under circumstances that applied an acid test. His country is
and should be, inordinately proud of him.—New York Herald Tribune.

CAUSE OF CONVULSIONS

Some ailments of infancy and childhood are really terrifying.
Convulsions is one of them. It strikes terror to a mother's heart as that of "the greatest reconciliation in the history of the world," but even this does not hint of its delicacy. That he should perform
it to the queen's taste, without
bluster or compromise, retaining to
the end the confidence and good will of debtor and creditors alike,
is a tribute to American genius second to none in our time.

Mr. Gilbert is ten years older than Col. Lindbergh, but it comes natural to link the two in the matter both of achievement and of character. Mr. Gilbert, like the
colonel, is a tall man, a shy man,
an expert in his line, whose superior self-confidence is matched
by an equally extraordinary mental
balance. As the unofficial representative of his country in a foreign land he has left the same indubitable impression of modest competence that Lindbergh conveyed,
and under circumstances that applied an acid test. His country is
and should be, inordinately proud
of him.—New York Herald Tribune.

The attack comes on suddenly. In the first stage the arms and legs become stiff, the eyes roll up, the breathing appears to stop. The head is thrown back, and the body is rigid.

Then spasms occur in the legs and arms. There is distortion of the muscles of the face. The whole body appears to be in convulsive movement.

Indigestible Foods

In a few minutes the attack passes off. But it may come back again.

In the case of an infant a form of fever may be followed by convulsions.

Not only a high fever, but anemia, exhaustion and various toxic conditions of the system may bring on convulsions. Certain brain ailments may be ushered in with this symptom.

Most of the common ailments of babies may be traced to wrong feeding. Convulsions are a very likely result of indigestion. Coagulated milk, or other indigestible substances can produce this trouble.

If an attack appears the first thing to do is to call a doctor. Until he comes you must do something to draw the blood from the head to the extremities. This may be accomplished by immersing the child in a bath of warm water, not hot water, of course. You must be very careful about having the water warmer than the body temperature, but not hot enough to scald the child. Be extremely careful about this.

The Treatment

Place the child in the bathtub, being careful to keep the head above water. Apply cold water or ice packs to the head. The idea is to keep the head cool and the body warm.

Rectal enemas should be given so as to empty the bowels. This is very important.

In an attack of convulsions there are three things to remember—first,
send for a doctor; second, place
the child up to the neck in warm water; third, apply cold compresses or an icebag to the head.

Your child's health is of the greatest importance. The eating habits must be right. A mother must always be vigilant as to what her small child puts in its mouth.
Proper food and feeding will cause the youngster to escape convulsions.

ptoms such as you describe. Correct

FRANKLIN N. H. Aug. 2—A scientific exploring expedition to determine the exact location of the main village of the early New England Indians, its tribal population, their migrant routes, and crude modes of living was under way under the direction of Professor Warren K. Moorehead, of Andover, director of the Merrimack Valley Archaeological Survey and a party of 12 persons.

Cooperating with the Survey were
Phillips Andover Academy, Peabody
Museum, American Indian Museum
of Harvard University, New Hampshire State Museum at Concord, the Museum at Manchester and the Children's Museum of Boston.

The scientific party established camp at Newburyport, Mass., at the mouth of the Merrimack and
worked steadily up the river, searching out old Indian camp sites and cemeteries. To date some 70 Indian villages and fishing stations
have been studied and mapped out by the party. About 600 stone relics illustrating the ancient art of New England stone age predecessors were collected.

Find Cutting Tool

The most interesting object
found so far was a highly polished cutting tool of hand-hatchet type and was believed to have belonged to the Iroquois of the Mohawk Valley,
New York. Two decayed skeletons were also found on the banks of the Concord river near North Billerica.
Many fire or ash pits of the native villages have been uncovered.

"It has long been known that the Weirs was named because the Original American collected there in great numbers during the spring and summer to catch salmon, shad
and other fish," declared Professor Moorehead. "They built wicker traps and secured vast numbers of fish which were dried and packed in baskets and skins for winter consumption."

COLORADO CHIEF DISLIKES DEATH PENALTY TASKS

Governor Is Opponent To Hanging But Many Pay Penalty

REGRETS ACTION
IN MANY CASES

Forced To Give Rulings
Despite His Personal
Attitude On Topic

DENVER, Aug. 2.—Through an unwelcome opponent of capital punishment Gov. William H. Adams has been called upon to consider more hanging cases than any other Colorado governor.

During his administration seven men have died on the gallows at Canon City, and five more are condemned to die at the state penitentiary. The three Manter (Kan.) bank robbers are scheduled to hang next month.

Gov. Adams voted against capital punishment as a state senator and now describes the law as an unpleasant one which he cannot sidestep in the course of duty.

Naturally, hangings are very unpleasant situations," the governor says. "I hope never to go through any again. But if it has to be, it has to be."

Could Not Sidestep
"No matter how much I would have liked to avoid the hangings, I could not sidestep them. Capital punishment is the law in Colorado. It is not my personal law. I took an oath to uphold all laws and I cannot shirk responsibility just because I do not like it."

The most trying of all the hangings Gov. Adams has had to consider was that of Ralph Fiegle, leader of the Lamar bank gang. Those who attempted to obtain a commutation of life imprisonment for Fiegle contended that the state of Colorado had promised the bandit chieftain not to ask for a death penalty in return for his confession, which cleared up the Lamar bank robbery and led to the capture of two of his confederates.

Gov. Adams reviewed the claims and saw no reason for not upholding the capital punishment law. Fiegle went to his death on July 10, and his two confederates, George J. Absher and Howard L. Royston, followed him to the gallows by a week.

Following the hangings of the Manter bandit trio—John Walker, Andrew Halliday, and Claude Ray—scheduled for the week of Aug. 9, Emilio Herrera, Denver, wife slayer, will go to the gallows some time during the week of Aug. 16. William Moya, slayer of Joseph M. P. Denver, has an appeal from the death sentence pending before the state supreme court.

Many Are Hanged
Ray, Oakes and Arthur Osborne, youths who murdered Fred N. Seak, Grand Lake, Colo., inmate, by hanging him from the limb of a tree in July, 1926, were the first to be executed under Gov. Adams' administration.

Based on all sides to save the two youths, both in their teens, Gov. Adams was unwavering and they were hanged March 30, 1928. After expressing hope that he never would have to consider the case of the condemned man again, the governor had it go through when Eddie Ives was sentenced to death for the murder of a Denver policeman, Harry Uhle.

The Ives case was sensational and attracted wide attention. Patrolman R. K. Evans, who was wounded when Uhle was killed, was shot and killed by the nurse who attended him—Farice King, his former sweetheart, now serving a life term in the penitentiary. Thirty-five men have been executed in Colorado since capital punishment was incorporated into the statutes 40 years ago. No woman has ever been legally hanged in the state.

Conrad Nagel Unable To Keep Clear Of Film Tangle

Scenario Writers Busy
Producing Action
For Actor

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 2.—This peer fellow Conrad Nagel gets himself into some of the most deuced situations. Scenario writers must stay awake daytimes to invent new twists and domestic complications for our dashing Nagel to wrap himself up in.

In "Dynamite" he had the unsatisfactory job of seeking a stick of dynamite on the nose with a sledge hammer, so that the girl his wife was going to sell him to could emerge alive with her husband from the blocked mine shaft—if you follow me. Anyway there was a flash and a boom and that is all we see of Nagel until his next picture.

In "The Divorcee" Nagel found himself forced to marry a girl he didn't love because she had been disfigured in an auto crash he brought about by overdrinking. Later, when it appeared that Norma Shearer and Chester Morris had parted forever, Nagel wooed her, only to be thwarted by a sudden outbreak of sentiment on the divorcee's part.

The examples could be compounded. Nagel in a simple love story, living a sweet domestic life, is a housewife. His producers won't let him be happy and quiet. He's got to jump around and get himself in some of the worst tangles.

Now comes another picture and new troubles for Nagel. The studio which borrowed him for the production has sent out to the papers a synopsis of the story. I read it forward three times and backwards once and tried my best to remember the first part while reading the last, and finally did what the title says the lady did—surrendered.

Here's the synopsis of "The Lady Surrenders." See if you can follow Nagel through this new puzzle.

Winthrop Beaulieu (Conrad Nagel), wealthy young Philadelphia manufacturer (Nagel eats up such roles) finds his domestic happiness endangered by his wife's devotion to authorship. His wife, Isabel (Rose Hobart) writes a startling frank article on marriage and signs it with a fictitious name.

Winthrop, perplexed by his own matrimonial situation, asks the author to dine with him to discuss the problem further, unaware that the writer is his wife. Isabel prevails on her friend Mary Allen (Genevieve Tobin) to pose as an author.

Winthrop meets Mary in New York and spends the night in that city. Isabel accuses Winthrop of having spent the night at Mary's apartment and leaves for Europe. Isabel cables Winthrop she intends to get a divorce in France. She has a flirtation with Carl Vautour.

ANCIENT AZTEC LITERATURE IN MEXICO, BELIEF

Professor Writes Book On Discoveries Made In Search In Ruins

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 2.—Extensive bodies of pre-conquest Mexican literature, supposed to have perished with the destruction of the Indian libraries, during and after the fall of the Aztec empire, are still in existence, reveals John Hubert Cornyn, professor of Aztec language and literature in the National University of Mexico, in his new book on Aztec literature just published.

Cornyn, who has been in Mexico since 1909, studying the language and literature of the Aztec Indians, supplies translations of several charming poems of the Aztecs in his volume, titled "The Song of Quetzalcoatl." The translations are regarded in Mexican educational circles as authoritative in view of the author's thorough knowledge of the now dead language of the Aztecs.

Cornyn came into contact in 1920 with copies of sixteenth century Aztec documents. He has spent the ensuing decade in research work on the characteristics of Aztec literature.

"These studies have revealed that the Aztecs never wrote their literature, before the arrival of the Spanish conquerors in the first quarter of the sixteenth century, because their system of hieroglyphics was not sufficiently developed to record formal compositions," Cornyn writes.

"The Aztec students were required to memorize this literature as the treasure lore of the nation, throughout the long years of the school curriculum and in the homes on certain well defined ceremonial occasions prescribed by law and enjoined by ancient custom."

Cornyn declares that there was intense literary activity in Mexico during the closing years of the Aztec empire when poems were composed that would do credit to any nation; and that a very respectable body of this literature still exists.

Explaining the origin of the title of the book, Cornyn says: "Among the ancient Aztec poems that have come down to our day those centering about the mysterious personage of Quetzalcoatl, the Wind God, come nearer to being national and are more deeply inspired by the myths and lore of the past than any others in the Aztec tongue. This cycle of metric compositions was intensive and varied, embracing songs, ballads, myths, lamentations, temple rituals and the grand epic of the Wind of God which, in a somewhat truncated form, furnishes the title of this volume."

The first copy of the book to come off the presses was presented to Governor Frank G. Allen in the presence of state officials and representatives of the Massachusetts Bay Tercentenary, Inc.

The book was printed in Massachusetts on paper made in this state and was bound by bookbinders with materials produced in the Commonwealth. It contains historical sketches and illustrations of various communities throughout Massachusetts, a record of Tercentenary activities, and a summary of the economic, commercial and educational development of the State during the past 300 years.

You can't law game back; you've got to raise it by creating the right kind of environment for it to thrive, according to Carlos Avery, president of the American Game Protective Association.

MYSTERY GIRL BRINGS HOPES TO CONDEMNED

Bandits Visited In Cells
By Pretty Lass; Will
Die For Murder

CANON CITY, COLO., Aug. 2.—A mysterious girl in blue has brought romance to one and a faint eleventh hour hope to the other two of the three condemned Manter (Kansas) bank bandits, who have replaced the Lamar trio in the state penitentiary death house here.

The girl who is much more alive and attractive than the hope she brought with her, came to the office of Warden Francis E. Crawford and asked to see Andrew C. Halliday, who, with his pals Claude Ray and John Walker, are to be hanged the week ending August 9.

"I was Andrew Halliday's sweetheart, back in Missouri," the girl, whose surname is said to be Yauken, told the warden. "We were engaged May 1 see him?"

Halliday was led from his cell and the girl cried bitterly while upbraiding him for "getting into this jam," while the doomed youth apparently was experiencing a terrible struggle to hide his feelings. The girl kissed him and, weeping, left him, leaving a small amount of money at the clerk's office to buy cigars for Halliday.

Before departing the girl said she and other friends of the convicted youth in Missouri had raised funds with which to carry an appeal for the doomed men to the Colorado supreme court and had retained Attorney E. M. Eggleston of Canon City.

The trio are under sentence to die in Colorado for killing Deputy Sheriff C. A. Hickman near Eads, Colo., March 15, during their flight after robbing the Manter bank. They were later rounded up in Kansas and turned over to Colorado authorities.

All three confessed, and were sentenced to death at Eads, Colo., April 1, less than a month after the holdup and killing.

While the Manter trio have occupied the background during the notoriety attendant on the Lamar bandit trio hanging cases, they have taken the spotlight now that the Fiegle gang has been executed.

Apparently a fight is to be made for them, too. When informed that an appeal would be carried to the supreme court on their behalf, John Walker,

Boyish Prank Almost

leader of the Manter bandits, expressed little concern.

"I don't care much myself," he said, "but I'm glad the money has been raised so it might help the two who are in this jam with me. I hate to see them die for this thing. They could have beat it that day Hickman was killed, but they wouldn't."

"I cussed them out and told them to make their getaways down there in Kansas, but they stuck with me. If they had drifted into the 'sticks' they never would have been caught, and I also would have had a chance by pretending to be a farmer marooned on the prairie with a broken-down automobile."

Halliday is a tall, awkward, gawky country boy, 22 years old. After his capture he said he was born in Tennessee and moved to Webb City, Mo., with his mother when a child. When he started robbing banks, he said, he bought his mother and his "girl" feminine finery with the loot.

Following his capture, Halliday was stricken with remorse. "I would like to go on living," he said.

Claude Ray, like Halliday, is a youth in his twenties, but of a more taciturn nature than his two companions.

If you work hard and leave your widow a big fortune, it may take her relatives five years to rob her.

Nor hath constrained laughter any grace—Chapman.

Today's Pattern

Dresses that will launder well are an essential part of every summer wardrobe. Add to this, the chic and comfort of today's model, and you will have the ideal warm weather rig. The V of the neckline repeated in back, is carried out in the cleverly cut bodice yoke and skirt joining. A pet bow adds a becoming touch. If the frock is bound in contrasting tape, a leather belt the same color would be smart, indeed.

Pattern 1851 is stunning made of wash silk or cotton fabric—broadcloth, pique, shantung, pongee, dimity, crepe de chine, etc. Attractive color combinations are red and white, yellow and green, blue and rose, brown and beige, black and white.

May be obtained only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28 and 30. Size 14 requires 2 1/2 yards of 36 inch material.

THE SUN

Photographers, aviators, refreshment dealers and bathhouse operators are about the only ones who
can comment on the "fine weather we're havin'." And even they would welcome a good rain.

The farmer, to whom weather is a factor in production, is watching his corn standing stiffly in parched ground. He has tried to reap and bind pigmy oat stalks without great success. His potatoes and beans have stopped growing, and he is wondering where he will find water and food for his cattle and sheep. Farm relief doesn't mean much to him
right now but two or three days of
good rainfall would be a real god-
send. Rain, unfortunately, is not the product of governmental activity.

It was a different story in July,
1929. Then the farmer watched his sheaves of wheat floating about in water, saw his corn lying flat after high winds and torrential downpours and herded his stock into one corner of the pasture to keep it
from drowning. Whereas the total rainfall in Canton for the entire
month of July this year is but 1.29
inches, 2.46 inches fell during one day last year, July 19. On another day, July 9, 1.05 inches of water fell in 12 minutes. The total precipitation up to the 25th day of July, 1929, was 8.7 inches and it had increased to 9.92 inches by the end of the month. Incidentally a precipitation record which had stood since 1896 was broken by the rainfall up
to July 25 last year a dry record
which has stood since 1882 was broken in July of the present year.

Drouth doesn't occur often, fortunately, but its infrequency is slight comfort. No one can predict
the true extent of the damage done
this month nor the effect it will
have upon food prices next winter,
but that there will be effects goes without saying. The most consideration at the moment goes to the farmer standing on his doorstep every morning to watch another gloomy sunrise. Unofficial weather prophets warn that he will be watching glorious sunrises for another month and that is real
tragedy—nothing to do but wait and take the consequences.

DOUBTS

The arrival of Zoro Agha, seasoned Turkish tea-totaller and sequesterian, in this country has turned the thoughts of many to the jinking feebleness that will make its pounce sooner or later. Mr. Agha
and others who claim sensational
longevity are faintly glimmering
examples of what may be done to delay the dread day of decline by
the simple life—or so their feat of protraction is interpreted.

Some few days ago this newspaper presented the names of several prominent centenarians of the day and one other who claims to have lasted it out for 252 years. At the same time doubt was expressed
concerning the possibility of overestimation. The fuss which has been made over Mr. Agha prompts further voicing of doubts.

There is the statement, for instance, made by Arthur Hunter,
chief actuary of a large insurance company, to the effect that there is no authenticated case of a human being who has lived to be more than 106 years of age. Mr. Hunter
says that most cases of extreme
age blow up when investigated and dwindle down to the nineties, or thereabouts. He points out that they are most frequent in countries
where records are incomplete or
have never been made. It is not proof so much as disproof that is difficult to find.

Mr. Hunter has hit the old-age claims on a rheumatic joint, so to speak. He has put them in the place to which suspicion directs
them naturally—in the same pigeon-

hole with the lady in Color Corners, Ariz., who was cured of cancer by one bottle of Snake Eye Electric Lotion, and so forth. The lady's story may, like Mr. Agha's age, all
be true but who is going to take
the trouble to find out?

The effect of all this is simple
enough. Mr. Agha and his companions in old age have their stories and they'll stick to them. The rest of us have doubts and we'll stick
to them. If something should pry us loose we can make this inquiry:
Who wants to live more than a hundred years anyway?

Senator Borah plans to spend his vacation in Maine. With President Hoover a couple of thousand miles away, the senator should enjoy a good rest—not to speak of Mr.
Hoover.

Another Americanism—Paying little or no attention to the murder
of a poor person but calling out
the state militia when a politician
or millionaire is shot.

What Others Say

CONTRAST OF HOMEcomings

With no desire whatever to dis-parage the brilliancy of Admiral Byrd's achievement or to question his right to the great popular
acclaim on the occasion of his homecoming, one can not help but
contrast the manner and size of
his welcome with that extended three days before to S. Parker Gilbert. Not that Mr. Gilbert would have expected or enjoyed the demonstration that was Admiral Byrd's
lot. It was characteristic of him
that in coming up the bay he
should talk in generalities to the
reporters who besieged him, and
then cut the interview short to join
his wife in looking at the sunset,
also that he should land like any other traveler returning from a European visit and immediately vanish from public view.

Yet when one weighs his accomplishment during his five years and
a half as agent general for repa-
rations payments one finds it difficult
to exaggerate its importance or to point to any other member of his generation who more richly deserves the admiration of his countrymen. His task has been described as that of "the greatest receivership in the history of the world," but even this does not hint of its delicacy. That he should perform
it to the queen's taste, without
bluster or compromise, retaining to
the end the confidence and good will of debtor and creditors alike, is a tribute to American genius second to none in our time.

Mr. Gilbert is ten years older than Col. Lindbergh, but it comes natural to link the two in the matter both of achievement and of character. Mr. Gilbert, like the
colonel, is a tall man, a shy man,
an expert in his line, whose supreme self-confidence is matched by an equally extraordinary mental balance. As the unofficial representative of his country in a foreign land he has left the same indelible impression of modest competence that Lindbergh conveyed,
and under circumstances that supplied an acid test. His country is,
and should be, inordinately proud
of him.—New York Herald Tribune.

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Some ailments of infancy and
childhood are really terrifying.
Convulsions are one of them. It strikes terror to a mother's heart when an infant under one year is in a condition more serious than older children. But up to the age of three it should not be regarded lightly. It rarely attacks a child after the sixth or seventh year.

The attack comes on suddenly. In the first stage the arms and legs
become stiff, the eyes roll up, the breathing appears to stop. The head is thrown back, and the body is rigid.

Then spasms occur in the legs
and arms. There is distortion of
the muscles of the face. The whole body appears to be in convulsive movement.

Indigestible Foods
In a few minutes the attack passes off. But it may come back again.

In the case of an infant a form of fever may be followed by convulsions.

Not only a high fever, but anemia, exhaustion and various toxic
conditions of the system may bring
on convulsions. Certain brain ailments may be ushered in with this symptom.

Most of the common ailments of
babies may be traced to wrong
feeding. Convulsions are a very likely result of indigestion. Coagulated milk, or other indigestible substances can produce this trouble.

If an attack appears the first thing to do is to call a doctor. Until he comes you must do something to draw the blood from the head to the extremities. This may be accomplished by immersing the
child in a bath of warm water, not
hot water, of course. You must be very careful about having the water
warmer than the body temperature
but not hot enough to scald the child. Be extremely careful about this.

The Treatment
Place the child in the bathtub,
being careful to keep the head above
water. Apply cold water or ice packs to the head. The idea is to keep the head cool and the body
warm.

Rectal enemas should be given so as to empty the bowels. This is very important.
In an attack of convulsions there
are three things to remember—first,
send for a doctor; second, place
the child up to the neck in warm water; third, apply cold compresses or an icebag to the head.

Your child's health is of the greatest importance. The eating habits must be right. A mother
must always be vigilant as to what
her small child puts in its mouth.
Proper food and feeding will cause the youngster to escape convulsions.

Reader Q—What would cause silver lines moving like streaks of lightning before the eyes?
Headaches follow these spells.
A—Billiousness or auto-intoxication would be apt to cause symptoms such as you describe. Correct the diet and watch the elimination.
These are symptoms of one form of "sick headache."

INDIAN RELICS SEARCH OBJECT OF EXPLORERS

New England Scene Of Activities By Big Historic Group

FRANKLIN, N. H., Aug. 2.—A scientific exploring expedition to determine the exact location of the main village of the early New England Indians, its tribal population,
their migrant routes, and crude
modes of living, was under way under the direction of Professor Warren K. Moorehead, of Andover, director of the Merrimack Valley Archaeological Survey and a party of 12 persons.

Cooperating with the Survey were
Phillips Andover Academy, Peabody
Museum, American Indian Museum
of Harvard University, New Hampshire State Museum at Concord, the Museum at Manchester and the Children's Museum of Boston.

The scientific party established
camp at Newburyport, Mass., at the mouth of the Merrimack and
worked steadily up the river,
searching out old Indian camp sites
and cemeteries. To date some 70
Indian villages and fishing stations
have been studied and mapped out by the party. About 600 stone relics illustrating the ancient art of New England stone age predecessors
were collected.

Find Cutting Tool

The most interesting object
found so far was a highly polished
cutting tool of hand-hatchet type
and was believed to have belonged to
the Iroquois of the Mohawk Valley,
New York. Two decayed skeletons
were also found on the banks of the Concord river near North Billerica.
Many fire or ash pits of the native
villages have been uncovered.

It has long been known that the Weirs was named because the Original American collected there in great numbers during the spring
and summer to catch salmon, shad
and other fish," declared Professor Moorehead. "They built wicker
traps and secured vast numbers of
fish which were dried and packed
in baskets and skins for winter consumption."

Governor Winthrop and other officials journeyed to the Weirs to hold council with these Indians. It was a famous meeting place and here were gathered the men and women of a score of sub-tribes from southern and central New England.

The relics uncovered by the expedition will be placed in museums of New England historical and scientific societies.

At the present camp of the expedition here, near the mouth of the Winnepesaukee river, were found fish implements, broken pottery, hatchets, gouges, fish-pears, bone awls, and other objects.

The Stars Say

Sunday, Aug. 3

Sunday's horoscope is a generally unfavorable one, with a forecast of craft, duplicity, slander and malice strongly accented. It would be wise to be on guard against such malicious attack, which may be offset by the assistance or friendship of elderly persons or institutions. Be careful as to changes and travel.

Those whose birthday it is are warned of a year which may bring forth some subtle, malicious and underhand attack, with gossip, slander and duplicity. They should be on guard against all manner of double-dealing and fraud. Benefits from elderly persons or institutions and through strict application to business is seen. It is advised that all changes and travel be made with caution. A child born on this day should be steady and industrious but may be subject to undoing through malicious attack, slander and underhand methods. Elderly persons will be its friends.

Monday, Aug. 4

Monday's astrological forecast is a very important one, showing a hidden upsurge of affairs, with change of environment and probably of employment, all to have a radical influence upon the career and the aims. While there is an omen of a tempestuous or violent episode, with a burst of freshness or passion, yet if words and actions be kept under firm control, all circumstances may be turned in the direction of signal progress and gain. But calmness is enjoined.

Those whose birthday it is stand at the threshold of a momentous year, in which there may be a radical turn to the affairs. There may be new environment distant opportunities and changed employment, all of which may be turned to excellent advantage if a degree of precaution be exercised not to jeopardize splendid prospects by rashness, impetuosity and ill temper. Calmness and precision are indispensable to attain a pre-eminent success. A child born on this day should be splendidly endowed with the genius and faculties for attaining high success in life, but it must curb a rash, tumultuous and fiery disposition.

Mothers get the most fun out of life. They aren't afraid somebody will think them morons.

Despite His Personal
Attitude On Topic

DENVER, Aug. 2.—Through an unwavering opponent of capital punishment Gov. William H. Adams has been called upon to consider more hanging cases than any other Colorado governor.

During his administration seven men have died on the gallows at Canon City and five more are condemned to die at the state penitentiary. The three Manter (Kan.) bank robbers are scheduled to hang next month.

Gov. Adams voted against capital punishment as a state senator and now describes the law as an unpleasant one which he cannot sidestep in the course of duty.

Naturally, hangings are very unpleasant situations, the governor says. "I hope never to go through any again. But if it has to be, it has to be."

Could Not Sidestep
"No matter how much I would have liked to avoid the hangings, I could not sidestep them. Capital punishment is the law in Colorado. It is not my personal law. I took an oath to uphold all laws and I cannot shirk responsibility just because I do not like it."

The most trying of all the hangings Gov. Adams has had to consider was that of Ralph Peagle, leader of the Lamar bandit gang. Those who attempted to obtain a commutation of life imprisonment for Peagle contended that the state of Colorado had promised the bandit chieftain not to ask for a death penalty in return for his confession, which cleared up the Lamar bank robbery and led to the capture of two of his confederates.

Gov. Adams reviewed the crime and saw no reason for not upholding the capital punishment law. Peagle went to his death on July 10, and his two confederates, George J. Abner and Howard L. Royston, followed him to the gallows by a week.

Following the hangings of the Manter bandit trio—John Walker, Andrew Halliday, and Claude Ray—scheduled for the week of Aug. 5, Emilio Herrera, Denver wife slayer, will go to the gallows some time during the week of Aug. 16. William Moya, slayer of Joseph Zupp, Denver recluse, has an appeal from the death sentence pending before the state supreme court.

Many Are Hanged

Ray Oakes and Arthur Osborne, youths who murdered Fred N. Selek, Grand Lake, Colo., hermit, by hanging him from the limb of a tree in July, 1926, were the first to be executed under Gov. Adams' administration.

Becked on all sides to save the two youths, both in their teens, Gov. Adams was unwavering and they were hanged March 30, 1928.

After expressing hope that he never would have to consider the case of the condemned man again, the governor had to go through when Eddie Ives was sentenced to death for the murder of a Denver policeman, Harry Uhle.

The Ives case was sensational and attracted wide attention. Patrolman R. K. Evans, who was wounded when Uhle was killed, was shot and killed by the nurse who attended him—Farice King, his former sweetheart, now serving a life term in the penitentiary.

Thirty-five men have been executed in Colorado since capital punishment was incorporated into the statutes 40 years ago. No woman has ever been legally hanged in the state.

Conrad Nagel Unable To Keep Clear Of Film Tangle

Scenario Writers Busy
Producing Action
For Actor

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 2.—This peer fellow Conrad Nagel gets himself into some of the most deuced situations. Scenario writers must stay awake daytimes to invent new fixes and domestic complications for our dashing Nagel to wrap himself up in.

In "Dynamite" he had the unsatisfactory job of seeking a stick of dynamite on the nose with a sledge hammer, so that the girl his wife was going to sell him to could emerge alive with her husband from the blockaded mine shaft—if you follow me. Anyway there was a flash and a boom and that is all we see of Nagel until his next picture.

In "The Divorcee" Nagel found himself forced to marry a girl he didn't love because she had been disfigured in an auto crash he brought about by overdrinking. Later, when it appeared that Norma Shearer and Chester Morris had parted forever, Nagel wooed her, only to be thwarted by a sudden outburst of sentiment on the divorcee's part.

The examples could be compounded. Nagel in a simple love story living a sweet domestic life is a bachelorette fable. His producers won't let him be happy and quiet. He's got to jump around and get himself in some of the worst tangles.

Now comes another picture and new troubles for Nagel. The studio which borrowed him for the production has sent out to the papers a synopsis of the story. I read it forward three times and backwards once and tried my best to remember the first part while reading the last, and finally did what the title says the lady did—surrendered.

Here's the synopsis of "The Lady Surrenders." See if you can follow Nagel through this new puzzle.

Winthrop Beauvel (Conrad Nagel), wealthy young Philadelphia manufacturer (Nagel eats up such roses) finds his domestic happiness endangered by his wife's devotion to authorship. His wife, Isabel, (Hobart) writes a startling frank article on marriage and signs it with a fictitious name.

Winthrop, perplexed by his own matrimonial situation, asks the author to dine with him to discuss the problem further, unaware that the writer is his wife. Isabel prevails on her friend Mary Allen (Genevieve Tobin) to pose as an author.

Winthrop meets Mary in New York and spends the night in that city. Isabel accuses Winthrop of having spent the night at Mary's apartment, and leaves for Europe. Isabel cables Winthrop she intends to get a divorce in France. She has a flirtation with Carl Vau-

London Tot Holds
Accident Records

LONDON, April 2.—Peter Lancaster, age six, of Rishton, near Blackburn, who recently dislocated his shoulder through falling out of bed, is the world's accident record holder.

Peter's record for his six years is:

Fall out of a bedroom window. Kicked by a horse. Nearly drowned in a canal. Fell 25 feet from a roof of a mill. Knocked down by a horse. Run over by a bicycle.

Back in bed again, Peter is now "quite comfortable" but wondering what his next escapade will be.

LONDON.—Having the biggest airship John Bull is making plans for the biggest passenger ship. A Cunarder is to be so large that difficulty in insuring her is foreseen and the government has agreed to underwrite that cannot be absorbed in ordinary manner.

A married man married when he has income enough to pay the bills; a woman gets married because she dry, a polished Continental (New word for European—does not refer to Revolutionary War come). Which he leaves her for an actress, she drops her divorce plans and sails for home.

Meanwhile Winthrop, believing himself divorced, marries Mary. (Can you beat that?) Isabel at first refuses to give Winthrop up, but finally, touched by Mary's devotion, surrenders her husband.

And then the curtain. Are you still with us?

Richard Dix has his troubles, too. For years he has been collecting pipes—hundreds of them—and never, he complains, has he been assigned a role where he could smoke one.

Most of the stars have some sort of a collection. Will Rogers saves ropes. Harold Lloyd is reported to have small pieces of string. And they say that Tom Mix saves small pieces of soap. Perhaps he learned at in his cowboy days, supply stores being far apart on the range.

Betty Compson's collection of Paisley shawls is said to be worth several thousand dollars.

Shaw To Appear
AS FICTIONIST

Famous Writer To Publish Early Works, Refused
In Great Britain

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—George Bernard Shaw, who began his literary career as a novelist a half century ago before turning to playwriting, is to appear again in the role of a fictionist.

The dramatist's first novel, written fifty-one years ago but laid aside when a publisher could not be found for it, is to appear in September, it was disclosed by William H. Wise, New York publisher.

This early work will be included in a collected set of Shaw's writings, his first five volumes of which will appear next month simultaneously in London and New York. The author was twenty-three years old when he penned "Immaturity," which was refused. Mr. Wise said, by some sixty British and American publishers. After several years of fruitless effort to find a publisher Shaw put the manuscript away.

Bandits Visited In Cells
By Pretty Lass: Will
Die For Murder

CANON CITY, COLO., Aug. 2.—A mysterious girl in blue has brought romance to one and a faint eleventh hour hope to the other two of the three condemned Manter (Kansas) bank bandits, who have replaced the Lamar trio in the state penitentiary death house here.

The girl who is much more alive and attractive than the hope she brought with her, came to the office of Warden Francis E. Crawford and asked to see Andrew C. Halliday, who, with his pals Claude Ray and John Walker, are to be hanged the week ending August 9.

"I was Andrew Halliday's sweetheart, back in Missouri," the girl, whose surname is said to be Yoakum, told the warden. "We were engaged May 1 see him?"

Halliday was led from his cell and the girl cried bitterly while upbraiding him for "getting into this jam" while the doomed youth apparently was experiencing a terrible struggle to hide his feelings. The girl kissed him and, weeping, left him, leaving a small amount of money at the clerk's office to buy cigarettes for Halliday.

Before departing the girl said she and other friends of the convicted youth in Missouri had raised funds with which to carry an appeal for the doomed men to the Colorado supreme court and had retained Attorney E. M. Eggleston of Canon City.

The trio are under sentence to die in Colorado for killing Deputy Sheriff C. A. Hickman near Eads, Colo., March 15, during their flight after robbing the Manter bank. They were later rounded up in Kansas and turned over to Colorado authorities.

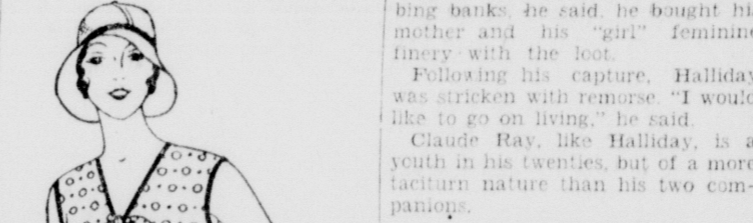

All three confessed and were sentenced to death at Eads, Colo., April 1, less than a month after the holdup and killing.

While the Manter trio have occupied the background during the notoriety attendant on the Lamar bandit trio hanging cases, they have taken the spotlight now that the Peagle gang has been executed.

Apparently a fight is to be made for them, too.

When informed that an appeal would be carried to the supreme court on their behalf, John Walker,

Boyish Prank Almost Fatal to Salem Boy

Francis Graham, 5, of Salem, Mass., who was near death from suffocation when four boys attacked him and forced a can of ether to his face. His mother found him unconscious. The oldest of his attackers was only 8.

leader of the Manter bandits, expressed little concern.

"I don't care much myself," he said, "but I'm glad the money has been raised so it might help the two who are in this jam with me. I hate to see them die for this thing. They could have beat it that day Hickman as killed, but they wouldn't."

"I cussed them out and told them to make their getaways down there in Kansas, but they stuck with me. If they had drifted into the 'sticks' they never would have been caught, and I also would have had a chance by pretending to be a farmer marooned on the prairie with a broken-down automobile."

"My regret all along has been that it was a shame such young fellows had to go without a chance and I'm sure glad they're going to get one."

Halliday is a tall, awkward, gawky country boy, 22 years old. After his capture he said he was born in Tennessee and moved to Webb City, Mo., with his mother when a child. When he started robbing banks, he said, he bought his mother and his "girl" feminine finery with the loot.

Following his capture, Halliday was stricken with remorse. "I would like to go on living," he said.

Claude Ray, like Halliday, is a youth in his twenties, but of a more taciturn nature than his two companions.

If you work hard and leave your widow a big fortune, it may take her relatives five years to rob her.

Nor hath constrained laughter any grace—Chapman.

HARTFORD LEADS CONNECTICUT IN CENSUS FIGURES

New Haven Relinquishes Hold As Biggest City In Eastern State

NEW HAVEN, CONN., Aug. 2.—New Haven finally has bowed to Hartford as first city in the state, relinquishing a lead that New Haven had held since the year 1890 when Hartford had 5,157 people and this city had 5,347 people. When final census figures were mailed to Mayor Thomas A. Tully, they were even lower than the city had hoped, being but 162,612 and showing a gain of 75 persons only. Chamber of Commerce officials revealed the figures with equanimity and promptly declared themselves satisfied.

"Shall you seek a recount?" they were asked. "No, we are satisfied things are no worse," was their reply. So Hartford, which was found to have 1,000 more persons in the federal count took over her place as "first city," and all is going well. The lagging behind of New Haven was due to the growth of her suburbs. The federal census showed the outer towns had made substantial gains, so that the New Haven area actually has a population of 304,615. The area's population ten years ago was 247,636.

Encouragement into the city's older residential districts by Yale university is the chief reason for the city's failure to grow. A contributing reason is the removal of manufacturing plants to the suburbs beyond the city's logical area. What the future may bring seems to be of little concern to the average citizen.

In the Churches

Holy Trinity English Lutheran, Rev. George D. Keister, pastor. (All services at the Memorial building on East State street.)

Seventh Sunday after Trinity. Sunday school 9:45 (Ruth 1:6-22). H. E. Smith, superintendent.

The Kingdom of God is an inclusive one. No one is barred. The gate is open. The entering depends upon the individual. The fact that Ruth was a Moabite woman did not prevent her choosing Jehovah as her God. It was a matter of choice with her. She was of such character that Jesus, the Christ of human ancestry was traced through her. So our Lord's Kingdom is reaching out today. It is open to Jew and Gentile, Protestant, Roman Catholic and Greek Catholic, Mohammedan and Buddhist, Confucianist and Shintoist. The door is open. Individuals choose whether they will enter in. "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved."

Morning worship 11:00. Sermon: "What do you fear?"

Different people have different fears. The advance of civilization tends to reduce the number of fears that man may have. Yet we shall never be able to be absolutely fearless. Any person that boasts of such an accomplishment, will have an eye-opening revelation some day. Jesus Christ would teach us that our many fears are baseless. Why fear misfortune, or enemies, or terrorism by night or day, or fire or flood? You should fear only the one who can destroy your soul unto eternity.

Sunday, Aug. 3.

9:45—Bible school. Lee B. Vincent, Supt. Have you ever experienced the thrill of bringing some new person with you to Sunday school? You couldn't take them to a better place. How about your neighbors? Do they go? Have they ever been invited? Perhaps they would be glad to come. Ask them. They will find an interesting lesson in the Book of Ruth 1:6-10, 14-22. What was Ruth's attitude toward foreigners? Is an American ever a foreigner? By what term would you be known if you were in a strange country? How would you like it? Should we not show some of the kindness and good will of Ruth?

11—Morning worship, sermon, "Overcoming the World." If you are puzzled by life, its hardness, its bitterness, if you have felt the goads of misfortune, the sting of defeat, if you are ready to give up—then this sermon is for you. What was Christ's answer? There will be no evening services during the month of August. We cordially invite everyone to attend the morning service. We have had an average attendance during July of 210. This is very encouraging considering vacations and hot weather. What will August reveal? Let us keep this average up.

BODY FOUND IN CLEVELAND PARK

Young Woman Shot Many Times By Assassants; Coroner Active

CLEVELAND, Aug. 2.—The body of a pretty young woman, apparently about 20 years old, was found in Olmstead near here today, shot to death.

The girl had been dead but a short time when found by Mrs. Mary Auschivich, who was walking to a spring to get water. The spot where it was found is in the metropolitan park reservation.

Finding of the body came less than 24 hours after another body apparently a murder victim had been found near Wadsworth.

The girl had been shot under the right eye, twice through the chest and once in the abdomen. Powder marks surrounded all the bullet wounds.

The girl had dark hair and eyes and her jewelry included a wrist watch, small diamond ring and earrings.

She was about five feet tall and well dressed. The body was still warm when found. Mrs. Auschivich said she had heard no shots fired.

Marshal Haley of Berea said the girl might have been slain in an automobile at some distant place and dumped out where found.

There were no marks of violence on the body and Marshal Haley said he was convinced she was a murder victim.

The body was immediately brought to the morgue here where Coroner Pearce conducted a post mortem.

GANGSTER SLAIN WHILE AT DANCE

Machine Gun Used When Slaying Invade Lake Resort Dance Hall

DELAFIELD, WIS., Aug. 2.—A gangland machine gun drowned out the tinkle of a piano in a lake resort dance hall last night and more than a score of vacationists saw five gangsters mow down a man whom Waukesha county authorities believed might be Jack Zuta, a chieftain of Chicago's northside Moran-Aiello combine.

Twenty or so couples were dancing in the Lakeview hotel annex, at upper Nemahbin lake, near Delafield, when the five men entered. Their victim, known at the resort as "J. H. Goodman," Aurora, Ill., was about to drop a nickel in the slot of a mechanical piano.

One of the gangsters carried a machine gun, another a riot gun, a third shot "Goodman" down with a pistol. Then the machine and riot guns were turned on the victim as he lay dying on the dance hall floor.

The gangsters fled in a car bearing Illinois license plates. County police, within an hour, found that the automobile used by "Goodman" at the resort, had plates issued to Albert Bratz, reputed gunman for Zuta. The clothing marks on the victim were "S. V." the initials of Solly Vision, another Zuta associate.

Chicago detectives were summoned to identify the slain man as either Zuta, Vision or Bratz. All have been questioned in the assassination of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, a police reporter for the Chicago Tribune.

DOHENY RELATES EXPERIENCES IN EARLY OIL DAYS

Wealthy Magnate Tells Of First Well Drilled In California

VETERAN BELIEVED ONE OF WEALTHIEST

First Barrell Sold For $250; Great Change Made In Prices

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 2.—After 37 years, Edward L. Doheny, reputed to be one of the wealthiest oil men in the world, recently took a pick and shovel and showed how he and Charles Canfield dug the first oil well in southern California.

Before a crowd of several hundred persons at Colton and Patton streets, the gray-haired oil magnate and his friend, Frank R. Seaver, demonstrated how a pick and shovel, a horse and a rope, and a spring pole, costing a total of $50, were used a generation ago to drill the first well.

The old well is still supplying oil, but its location in the now thickly built up section was found only after a lengthy search. Ancient equipment was assembled for the celebration.

Doheny's old friend, Charles Canfield, and a man named Grady were missing from the little band of workers who gathered at the hole. Both are dead.

A 10-year-old barefooted boy used to hang around the well, helping his father. The boy, Charles Canfield, Jr., was present at the scene.

"It is a long time since I used a pick and shovel," Doheny grinned as he picked up his tools.

The 73-year-old man paused and looked about the site, visibly moved as old memories came back to him.

"Thirty-seven years ago this month Charles Canfield and I looked at this spot and decided that there was some oil underneath the ground," he said. "We started a hole with a pick and shovel."

Doheny demonstrated that he could still use those tools.

"After we had reached a depth of about eight feet we could no longer throw the dirt out by hand, so we rigged up a tripod derrick like this one," Doheny resumed as he laid his hand on the ancient derrick, "with a block overhead and a block at the base."

"We then fastened one end of a rope to a bucket, which was lowered in the well; the other end of the rope we hitched to a horse."

A dilapidated-looking horse, which by little stretch of the imagination might have been the original one used, was then hitched to the rope.

"I shoveled a bucketful of dirt, and Canfield started the horse like this."

The horse was led away, and a bucketful of dirt appeared above the hole.

"The bucket was pulled out and Canfield dumped it."

"After we reached a depth of 145 feet with this shaft, I could not stand the work down below on account of the gas."

"So we rigged up a spring pole, and used a bit and sand bucket. We drilled a small hole 15 feet below the bottom of the 145-foot shaft. About 10 or 12 barrels of oil flowed into the bottom of the shaft and we baled it out and hauled it, with horse and wagon, down to a pipe factory where it was used for painting iron pipe."

At the time the first well was drilled Doheny and Canfield sold the oil for $2.50 a barrel. Today oil sells for 75 cents to $2.00 a barrel.

"It was used in those days largely for preserving the ancient wooden water pipe and wooden culverts that served the city."

"Some of the wells on this lot, including this one, were drilled in 1893, and are still pumping, as you see after 37 years."

The well that "came in with a rush of 12 barrels a day" is still pumping approximately six barrels a day.

"There has been a big change in the oil field operation in the past 37 years," Doheny resumed. "Let us get into the automobile and run over to Signal Hill and see the way wells are being drilled today."

And, escorted by a squadron of motorcycle officers, most of the crowd piled into automobiles and headed for the Dixie oil properties at Signal Hill, where the largest oil well rigging in the world has just been completed.

Arriving at the scene, the crowd walked up to the huge structure towering 164 feet into the air.

"Here you see a modern derrick with the crown block 140 feet above the ground, and the bottom of the hole 2800 feet below," he said. "In that first well we drilled, the total cost of equipment did not exceed $50. Today the equipment contained on this derrick cost more than $100,000."

The many problems encountered in finding oil's way nearly two miles underground makes oil well drilling interesting."

When Admiral Byrd arrived in St. Louis the other day to find the thermometer sticking at 103, he must have wondered if he did the right thing in cutting loose from all that Antarctic ice.

Hailed Heroine in 1926, Martyr to Glory's Crown Forgotten in 1930

Lauded All the World Over, First of Sex to Swim English Channel, Gertrude Ederle Pays for Fleeting Glory by Total Deafness.

WHAT price glory? This oft and been answered by one who has lived a crowded hour full in the spotlight of fame, and has had the homage of the great and the feverish adulation of the crowd. For Gertrude Ederle, the tumult and the shouting has ceased, and the plucky girl, the first of her sex to swim the English channel, has entered into the awful world of silence inhabited by the deaf. Four years ago she swam the channel and today she is just one of a corps of instructors at a boardwalk swimming pool at Rye, N. Y. People look at her curiously, as if striving to recall a familiar face, and it is only when someone points her out, or one notices her name embroidered on the back of her suit, that the bronzed young woman emerges from the mists of obscurity as one of the greatest swimmers of all time.

REDS DRIVE ON TO NEW CITIES

Smouldering Ruins Behind Inspire Attack On Other Places

SHANGHAI, Aug. 2.—The Yangtze river cities of Hankow, Hanyang and Wuchang, with a joint population estimated at several millions today lay in the path of China's advancing blood-crazed revolting armies and Communist forces.

Thousands of terrified Chinese, fearing their property, sought refuge in the barricaded foreign concessions of Hankow as Communist armies moved toward the tri-cities, fresh from the conquest and destruction of Changsha. The cities were under martial law. The capital at Hankow also was under military rule.

Changsha, smouldering remnant of what once was a prosperous silk manufacturing city, still was reported occupied by remnants of looting Red forces, activity of which prevented entry of landing parties from foreign gunboats, standing by in the Siang river.

Hundreds of wealthy Chinese were reported captured and held for ransom. Sixty provincial officers, hiding in the ruins of the city, were summarily executed by the conquerors. All foreigners were believed safe aboard the gunboats or in other cities.

Evacuation of Kiukiang and the nearby mountain summer resort of Kuling was under way. Chinese authorities gave foreigners three days to leave disclaiming responsibility for them after that time.

Why is it that we so constantly hear men complaining of their memory, but none of their judgment?—Colton.

great? And so, Gertrude Ederle, then just 20 years old, landed on the flare-lit beach near Deal, Eng., after having finished the gruelling swim of 14 hours, 34 minutes, a speedier time than was ever made by the five men who had negotiated the difficult crossing before her. The whole world lauded the pluck of the sturdy American girl and before her Gertrude came home to New York to receive one of the greatest receptions ever accorded by New York to those whom the city delights to honor. Her father's butcher shop on Amsterdam avenue in New York, was festooned and decorated and thronged by happy neighbors who had known Gertrude since she was a child.

New System For Conducting Fowl Census Planned In U. S.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—With the aid of all hunters and hunting clubs a new method for determining the approximate number of wild fowl existing in North America in any season is being developed by the biological division of the Agriculture Department.

Estimates will be based according to the difference between the number of ducks banded each year and the number of these banded ducks killed in the next hunting season, a statement of the Agriculture Department explains.

"If given a fairly accurate statement showing the number of wild ducks killed in North America in any one season, then the total number of ducks present on the continent for that season may be estimated by a percentage computation, based upon the relation that the total number of banded ducks killed during their first season as band carriers bears to the total number banded," the statement further analyzes.

"In order to test the theory it would be necessary to obtain the whole-hearted cooperation of clubs and individual sportsmen in reporting their annual bags. Such figures never would be complete, as many birds would be killed and not reported for one reason or another, but as a compensating factor, many banded ducks are doubtless killed that are not recovered or for various reasons are not reported," the report calculates.

"To assume a case: If in one season 5,000 ducks were banded and yielded 600 first-season returns, or 12 per cent, and if in that same season the number of ducks killed and reported by sportsmen were about 5,000,000, then 5,000,000 would be equivalent to approximately 12 per cent of the water-fowl population of 42,000,000 that year."

"With the continuance of banding work it should be possible ultimately to arrive at an average percentage that would serve as a standard, and in which the margin of error would be reduced to a negligible quantity," the biological report asserts.

Lou Gehrig Succeeds Al Simmonds As American Batting Leader

New York First-Sacker Hits For .387 Average; Ruth Tops Run Scores

(By The Associated Press) CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Lou Gehrig, the New York Yankee's first baseman, has broken Al Simmons' lead on the individual batting leadership of the American league, unofficial averages which include Wednesday's games, revealed today.

Maintaining his average of .387 during the fifteenth week of the campaign, while the pitchers were knocking ten points off the Athletics' outfielder's mark, Gehrig topped the list by seven points. Simmons, with his average of .380, was only four points in front of his teammate, Mickey Cochrane, who had .376.

The Yankee firm of Ruth and Gehrig between them held four other leaderships. Besides leading the league in slugging, Gehrig last week batted in 16 runs to retain the leadership with 125, and his accumulation of 291 total bases also was easily the best. Ruth added only one home run, but his total of 36 was the honor mark, with Gehrig four behind. The Babe also led the scorers with 114 runs.

Hodapp Leads Hitters
Gehrig also threatened to displace Johnny Hodapp of Cleveland, in hits. The Indian second baseman hit safely 10 times during the week for a season total of 147, but was only one ahead of Gehrig who connected 12 times. Marty McManus of Detroit held on to the base stealing and two base hit titles for another week. He swiped one sack to bring his total to 16, and although he failed to get another double, his total of 32 was still good enough. Carl Reynolds, young Chicago outfielder, banged out two triples to break his tie with Earl Combs of the Yankees and led with 15.

Wells Leads Hurlers

Edmund Wells, Yankee southpaw, still was the nominal leader of the pitchers, with eight victories and two defeats, representing no change over last week, but Bob Grove, the Athletics' fireballer, headed the hurlers taking regular turn. Grove won two games during the week and had 15 victories and four defeats, while Fred McBerry of Washington, gained credit for one triumph and had 12 victories and four setbacks. Grove was ousted from the strike out leadership by George Earnshaw, his teammate, who fanned 11 men in two games to bring his collection to 126, one better than Grove's mark.

The Yankees lost three points from their team batting average but are still at the top of the heap with .313. Cleveland remained the same at .307 to retain second place while Washington added a point to hold third place at .301. Philadelphia felled at the same gait as last week .974 and held the lead, with Washington still second at .972. Cleveland clicked off 10 double plays to make it 112 for the season and widen its margin over Detroit which had 109.

KLEIN TOPS NATIONAL

Youthful Philadelphia Star Takes Lead In Several Batting Races In National During Week

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—After a gallant uphill climb, Chick Klein of the Phillies finally has taken a fairly firm hold on the object of his struggles, the batting leadership of the National league. Klein, leader a week ago by a hardly visible margin, has kept on climbing and in the averages released today, which include Wednesday's games, has a margin of five points over his team mate and rival, Frank O'Doul. Klein's average is .408, O'Doul's .403.

The Philadelphia youngster already had more batting honors than most players could reasonably ask. He has held first place in scoring, hits and runs batted in and to this he has added a tie for the lead in hitting doubles. Klein has scored 103 runs, has hit safely 161 times and has batted in 110 tallies. His total of 33 two baggers gives him a tie for the lead with O'Doul and Johnny Frederiek of Brooklyn.

Adam Comorosky of Pittsburgh leads in triples with 14; Hack Wilson of Chicago in home runs with 33, and Kiki Cuyler of Chicago in stolen bases with 27, completing the somewhat scanty list of slugging leaders who have been able to outdistance Klein. The Philadelphia also figures in the second place roster with 29 home runs. Others on this list are Cuyler, Wilson and Babe Herman, Brooklyn, with 99 runs; Bill Terry, New York, 156 hits; Cuyler, 12 triples; Wilson 101 runs batted in; and Herman, 15 stolen bases.

Candidate Sued

PORTSMOUTH, O., Aug. 2.—Suit to collect $25 in fees from Joseph H. Smith, a candidate for state representative at the August primary, has been filed by Atty's Kenneth Stevens and John G. Cox. CARNERA TO BOX IN E. LIVERPOOL

EAST LIVERPOOL, Aug. 2.—In one of the concluding exhibitions of his present tour, Primo Carnera, Italian heavyweight boxing contender, will appear Tuesday night, Aug. 5, in Fouts bowl, Columbiana park.

Carnera's visit to East Liverpool has been made possible as a result of a 21-day extension granted to him by United States immigration authorities. It is understood that Primo has been ordered back to Italy where, it is said, he has still a year to serve in Premier Mussolini's army.

Carnera will take his 275 pounds of beef into the ring in an exhibition for four rounds.

His appearance will top off a program which also will include six fights which will not be exhibitions. Leading boxers of the valley will be paired off in these matches. In the event of extraordinarily hard rain, the program will be postponed one night.

YANKEES APPEAR AS REAL THREAT

(By The Associated Press) With Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig going like a conflagration, the New York Yankees are looking more and more like the real threat to the supremacy of the Philadelphia Athletics in the American league pennant struggle.

The A's still have a commanding lead, eight games ahead of Washington and nine ahead of the Yankees despite the loss of a half game to the New Yorkers through their idleness yesterday, but 51 games remain for each team, and a lot can happen in the number of contests.

It can happen especially when the Yankee slugging duet is hitting the high notes, and Ruth and Gehrig have been doing just that in the past few days. The babe clouted two home runs yesterday after a lapse of over a week since last previous four bagger. They served to win a ball game from the Boston Red Sox, providing three of the Yankee runs in a 4 to 1 victory. They also put the Babe 16 days and 12 games ahead of his record pace of 1927 when he reached his present total of 38 on August 17 in the 115th game of the season. Ruth took up yesterday where Gehrig left off in hitting homers and winning games, but Lou still is leading the league in batting and doing his full share for the Yanks, Charley Ruffing did a lot too, yesterday, as he held Boston to two hits.

Pairings Selected For Annual Presidents' Cup Golf Tourney

Pairings for the annual Presidents' cup matches were announced by Donald McLeay, Salem Golf club professional, today.

Thirty-two qualifiers were selected from low scores registered in Manufacturers' cup contests in which N. H. Knowlton won the championship. Play will be in progress next week following which the second flight will begin.

Knowlton won the Manufacturers' cup title by defeating Samuel S. Church in the 36-hole finals, 9 and 8. Knowlton's handicap of eight strokes proved too much for Church who fell behind early in the last nine-hole round.

Together with the Presidents' cup contests, an 18-hole match under 3-8 handicap, a choice score tournament, will be featured at the course as outstanding events of the August program. Best scores over five blind holes to be selected by the committee in charge of the event will decide winners.

Pairings for the first round in the Presidents' cup competition follow: W. H. Dunn vs. L. E. Greene; W. M. Stanley vs. E. S. Windle; Clyde Bryan vs. A. P. Mullins; R. L. Farr vs. R. M. Campbell; C. S. Carr vs. N. H. Knowlton; S. S. Church vs. O. L. Ear.

R. W. Campbell vs. J. T. Burns, Louis Probst vs. R. S. Hostettler, Nathan Hunt vs. W. B. Clark, W. J. Springer vs. J. H. Brian, H. L. Mc-Carthy vs. J. M. Kelley, F. I. Brian vs. H. L. Wright.

Solbert L. Greenberger vs. S. Y. Winder, James H. Wilson vs. Dr. Lowell Waldo King, Dr. R. T. Holzbach vs. M. N. Barnhart, Dr. Frederick R. Crowley vs. Dr. James M. McGeorge.

Big kernels in small shells

IN ADDITION to the advertisements of the big department stores, of the grocery and hardware stores, of the millinery, clothing and shoe stores, there is another kind of advertising that is being read more and more by readers of this newspaper. That kind of advertising is the Classified Columns.

A man or woman wants a job. They read the "Help Wanted" columns and probably insert an advertisement of their own under "Positions Wanted." Employer and job seeker soon get together to the benefit of both. A man may want an automobile—possibly he cannot afford a new car, so he looks in the "Used Car" columns and finds just the car at the price he can afford to pay. Some one has lost a pocketbook, valuable papers or even a pet dog. The "Lost and Found" columns soon bring loser and finder together.

The Classified Columns are so arranged that any one can readily find what he seeks quickly—business news, machinery and tools, household goods, horses, dogs, cats, canaries, etc. They enable you to locate what you are looking for in short order. So in reading advertising do not overlook the classified columns—the individual advertisements do not take up much room, but like the meaty nut they may contain a big kernel in a small shell—just for you.

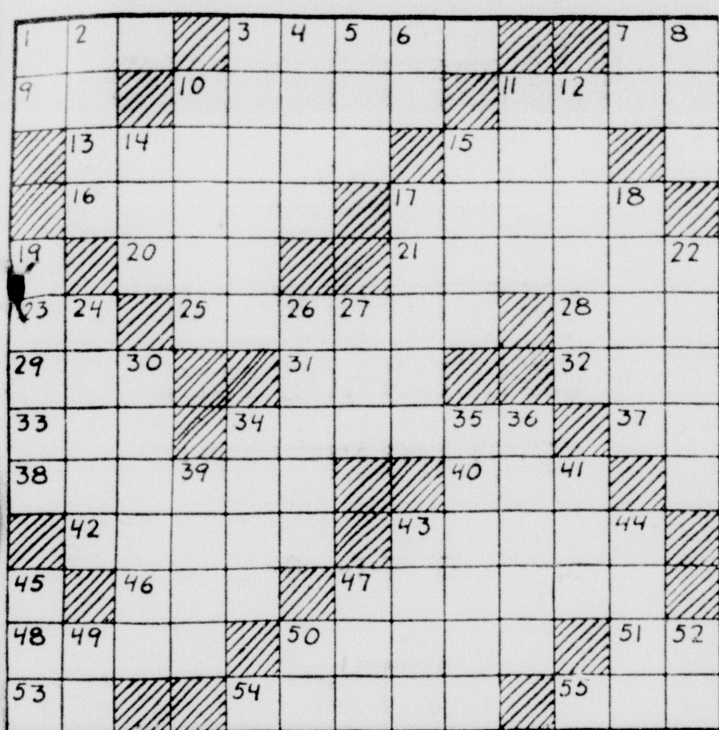

Read the advertisements for your own good... classified columns as well as display advertisements

HOME-MAKING HELPS

By Wanda Barton

The housekeeper got her first break on Sunday when the late risers demanded a combination meal—breakfast and lunch. That cut out extra service and reduced meals on Sunday from three to two. Big breakfast before noon and nothing until dinner at night. Only two meals a day instead of the old fashioned custom of making the day of rest the day when three big meals were served. (Yes, it's true the Sunday evening meal was called "tea" but what a tea! As far as quantity was concerned it was no less than the ample Sunday midday dinner, and the only difference was temperature. Sunday night tea consisted of cold meats and other cold dishes, everything so tempting that one naturally ate liberally of meat, salad, savory jellies, pies, cake and whatever else was hauled forth from the icebox.)

But what with the inroads which popular dieting has made on big meals, Sunday is no longer the day of feasting. People eat even less on their day of rest. And the one big meal of the day on Sunday is, in a great many households, the first meal. Breakfast may be served around noontime, true, but there will be guests and pleasant lingering over the meal. There's a delightful informality about breakfast which makes entertaining friends at that time rather charming and easy.

The number of people to be served governs the choice of menu. There should be excessive cooking or preparation. Berries and cream are easier to serve to a large number than grapefruit or orange juice. For the small party, bacon and eggs or omelets of various kinds (tomato, parsley, onion, ham, etc.) are simple. But if breakfast is served to a party there may be difficulty in the way of serving everything piping hot and everyone simultaneously. And bacon and eggs less than piping hot are less than palatable.

Other substantial dishes make for easier service. Hot biscuits, broiled fish, fried chicken, corned beef hash, lamb chops, broiled kidneys, liver and scrambled eggs are a few items which can be cooked conveniently for large numbers. Any quantity of these foods can be cooked at one time and served to all simultaneously. Incidentally, scrambled eggs are more practical for large numbers than either fried eggs or omelet.

Like the old-fashioned Sunday supper, the modern Sunday breakfast abounds in pleasant side dishes. All kinds of jams and marmalades, honey, maple syrup, and even a simple coffee cake are suitable. Toast is always popular and suitable for a small breakfast—if it is made at the table there may be inconveniences in serving a large number promptly, for which reason hot biscuits are preferable.
